STEP 1 - PRAY

Make a list of five men you believe and hope might want to go deeper and further together. Begin praying.

STEP 2 - PITCH

Without putting any pressure on the five you've been praying for, pitch the idea to them about possibly getting together on a regular basis for prayer, encouragement, and helping each other.

STEP 3 - PLAN

Determine the frequency you can meet (and be realistic). It's better to shoot for a goal that's attainable, rather than set out with expectations too high or too low. Once every three weeks or twice a month might be a good starting point. Set a length for this group so it's not "until death do us part," -- save that for marriage.

STEP 4 - START

Start meeting...but keep some basics in mind:

- Don't police or control others.
- Do ask for coaching and advice.
- Do expect commitment.
- Don't pressure...encourage.
- Do be sensitive to family time.
- Do lean on each other AND the Lord

STEP 5 - RESOURCE

Visit the Men's Higher Ground website for group discussion ideas, coaching, feedback, etc. Blessings!

YOU'RE INVITED

A PERSONAL INVITATION

At the 2018 Men's Higher Ground event, Brock Huard encouraged us to consider the power of having a team of men doing life together...and being accountable to each other.

After praying about this, I wanted to invite you to consider being part of a group of men in my life to meet regularly (and we will all decide the time, frequency, and date together).

I've written down my phone and email on the back of this sheet and invite you to call me to discuss this possibility. We would give it a shot for a season and see how it's working out for everyone.

If you believe having a group of men to encourage you is something you need right now, please consider joining me in this effort. Pray about it and let me know!
